They could survive for long periods of time because they are so use to the outdoors. They probably saw a lot of nature and animals which I think would be pretty cool. There security is good because they had each other to help each other.	They know nothing about the harsh climates. They did not know what crops would grow there or if they would be able to survive by killing and eating the wild life. They had to do a lot of work like plow fields, grow crops, and kill animals for their skin and fur and meat.	There clothing was interesting because it was made of animal furs. They got to canoe a lot. They had a lot of family members and they all loved each other. They played a lot of games and hunted which I think would be really cool.	-5 -4 -3 -2 -1 1 2 3 4 5 4

- Leisure's	them so they thought if their dead then that would be bad.	to d a lot of work for other people and they got nothing no money or other things.	good life.
Coueursdes bois -Security - Fundamental needs - Family - Leisure's	I think their security wasn't to good because they wouldn't know what would jump out of the trees and they didn't have strong enough weapons. I don't think they had very any leisure's because they did a lot of work and wouldn't have time to do or play anything	I think it would have to suck to walk to every place u go to and that's what they had to do, they had to hunt and make and sell furs to trade and get other things like coats or food. They must have had a big family because they needed a lot of products to help their family.	They got to see the snow a lot and we only see it once a year. They got to see a lot of sites because they hiked and went to different places a lot. They had cool hats and coats made from fur and animal skins they could meat a lot of animals on their way to every place that they go to.	-5 -4 -3 -2 -1 1 2 3 4 5  2
